They offered ideas that helped me develop new projects... It made a big difference in my learning and professional development. It never would have happened without Voices of the Staff.

ADAM GRANT PH.D.
WHARTON BUSINESS SCHOOL PROFESSOR
Voices is overwhelmingly about employee engagement. It helps all of our staff embrace and envision the future of work, connect to our shared missions, and make Michigan a better workplace.

As we set our sights on the future, the impact Voices makes will continue to grow and help develop an innovative workforce. It will serve as an incubator for people who shape, sustain, and support the University of Michigan into the next century.

Voices of the Staff is a catalyst for change at Michigan. It generates ideas, provides executives with a sounding board, and gives staff a window into the complexity of the entire university community. It is this broader view of our organization that helps to connect people and gives them the opportunity to innovate, learn and grow.
Today, Voices of the Staff is a focused, active network of 120+ staff members. From hundreds of applicants, participants are thoughtfully selected to yield a group that mirrors the demographics of the university as a whole.

This microcosm ensures Voices of the Staff reflects the unique makeup of the Michigan staff community. It also illustrates how our departments are connected to the university’s missions.

CELEBRATING 200 YEARS OF STAFF

Nearly 600 staff members volunteered to produce the MSTAFF200 staff recognition event, which had an estimated 20,000 attendees. And 200 of those who helped were active or former Voices members. From handing out Bicentennial gifts, to help with wayfinding, or staffing one of the hundreds of tables and displays, Voices members were a key element of celebrating 200 years of staff contributions.

“...It was spectacular and made staff feel so appreciated. I was moved and inspired by the whole event! I love my wooden block and look forward to seeing the new artwork dedicated to staff! Go Blue!!!!”

INNOVATION AWARD FOR STAFF HIGHLIGHTS REMARKABLE EFFORTS
The Office of the President, in collaboration with Voices of the Staff, solicits nominations annually for the President’s Staff Innovation Award. This award honors individual staff members or teams whose big ideas and “outside of The Cube” thinking help make the university a better, more inclusive community. The award recognizes innovations in process, product, method or system.

ALUMNI ADVISORY TEAM HELPS CREATE A NEW RECOGNITION AWARD
CFO Kevin Hegarty wanted to increase university-wide employee recognition and he turned to Voices for help. A team of Voices alumni set to work, extensively researching peer institutions as well as all areas of U-M. From this foundation they drafted recommendations which directly led to the creation of the new University of Michigan Staff Impact Awards.

CAREER DEVELOPMENT FUND LAUNCHES
The Voices Career Development Fund was created by staff to honor the university bicentennial by helping staff achieve their career development and continuing education goals.
The idea for the fund came from Voices of the Staff alumni. Fundraising began in 2015 and first awards will be distributed in December 2017 in recognition of the U-M bicentennial year. The fund aims to support staff in enhancing their professional experience at the university by offering grants of up to $1000.

EMBRACING CHANGE TEAM BUILDS COMMUNITY AND RESILIENCY

The Voices of the Staff Embracing Change Team created the “Embracing Change Community of Practice” that focuses on the opportunities and challenges of leading change at the University of Michigan. The team created a series of change sessions that showcase university change leaders, provide an opportunity to discuss challenging topics, and encourage the sharing of best practices.

CONTRIBUTING TO THE SELECTION OF THE PUBLIC ARTWORK TO HONOR STAFF

On October 27, the university dedicated the sculpture “Arriving Home” by Dennis Oppenheim to honor the contributions of all U-M staff.

REACHING OUT TO STAFF
In January 2018, Voices of the Staff is holding its fourth Town Hall. This event will gain new insights from bringing together hundreds of staff members and university leadership. The goal is simple, to take the pulse of our staff community and create a plan to shape Voices so it best meets the interests and demands of our future workplace.

PARTNERING WITH FACULTY
Voices is continuing to reach out to find new partnerships with Michigan Faculty. We are specifically focusing on faculty and students within the Ross School’s Center for Positive Organizations, offering a ready-made network of 120+ staff members ready for research. Plus, Voices is open to working with any faculty member to help Michigan meet its educational mission.
I am proud that U-M started and fosters efforts like Voices of the Staff to help make sure that staff opinions and advice make their way to leadership, and that our outstanding staff feel appropriately valued for their many contributions to our mission.
